// Challenge: To mass produce golf ball cores at a low cost, while holding tight tolerances with maximum throughput.

// Solution: Glebar designs and builds networked machines with the ability to gather production data. Inspection and conveyor systems designed for mass production have made our machines the standard method to fabricate golf balls. Note: Glebar is the only company in the world that makes a machine that grinds the core of a golf ball.